SuperATV plans for expansion in Madison

BY BOB DEMAREE

SuperATV has announced big plans for expansion in Madison and the first step in the process of growing that economic development began at Thursday's Madison Redevelopment Commission meeting with the adoption of an amending declaratory resolution.

"SuperATV has been a fast-growing company and we're excited to see them do a couple of things," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney. "One of those things is invest, but to invest seriously in Madison."

The overall capital investment for SuperATV projects is anticipated to be $71 million. Mike Flint, of Ice Miller, spoke to the board on behalf of SuperATV, noting there could be 250 to 370 new jobs created over the next five years depending on acquistions by SuperATV.

Flint said there is "a lot of activity" going on related to acquisitions including "very aggressive" efforts for several to make Madison their headquarters as part of the transactions. "It will also bring all their equipment here, and control of their patents and licenses, etc," he said.

The expansion of SuperATV would involve the plant at 2753 Michigan Road, with a new 120,000 square foot production/warehousing/logistics facility next to that building. Flint said the new facility could be completed by next year, but the first quarter of 2023 is more likely.

In addition to that expansion, another 100,000-square-foot expansion is being considered but may be delayed "due to the nature of steel costs and construction," said Flint.

He said there are also plans for additional development at the 1200 Clifty Drive Armor Plastics facility including an Innovation Center to develop new product lines, do quality control analyses, and product testing.

The resolution approved by the Redevelopment Commission will amend a declaratory resolution to remove parcels from the North Madison Economic Development Allocation Area and the City of Madison Northwest Allocation Area to create a SuperATV allocation area within the North Madison Economic Development Area and amend the Economic Development Plan.

3 more COVID-19 deaths reported in Trimble County

Moderna, J&J booster shots not available yet

BY COURIER STAFF

The local COVID-19 death toll increased by three in Trimble County based on a report Thursday by the Kentucky Public Health Department.

So far during the pandemic 14 Trimble County residents have died related to the coronavirus. There was no change in death totals in Jefferson County, which has had 95 die during the pandemic, or in Switzerland County and Carroll County with 11 and 23 deaths, respectively.

On Friday, Jefferson County Health Administrator Tammy Monroe reported the health department has received a high volume of calls regarding booster shots for Moderna and Johnson & Johnson vaccines.

She said booster doses for Moderna and Johnson & Johnson are still awaiting final approval from the Centers for Disease Control Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (CDC ACIP). The CDC ACIP is scheduled to meet on Oct. 20 and Oct. 21 to issue recommendations.

Once the Jefferson County Health Department receives official authorization from Indiana Department of Health, Monroe said the health department will begin

Council increases animal shelter allocation for 2022

BY BOB DEMAREE

A public hearing was held on Jefferson County's 2022 budget totaling $23,920,894 at Tuesday's County Council meeting.

The budget includes $350,000 for the animal shelter, an increase over the $209,401 allocated this year. Council president Pam Crozier noted the increase is due to the efforts to address staffing and other needs for the animal shelter, although the amount could change.

County Auditor Heather Huff said the amount for the animal shelter may change slightly as the Council reviews the line items in the budget, but made the total enough to address whatever the Council decides on those items.

Huff said the General Fund of $10,466,679 might also fluctuate slightly.

Crozier noted they set an appropriate number "hoping that the adjustments that we have to make will fall within that number so we don't have to come up with something magical later."

Huff said the General Fund provides enough money to accomplish that while remaining less than the advertised amount.

A budget adoption meeting is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 25, at 5 p.m. Once adopted by the county, the budget must still be finalized by the Department of Local Government Finance (DLGF).

The Council also approved a budget of $77,490 for Saluda Township. Township advisory boards typically approve their own budgets but Huff said the DLGF required the County Council to approve the budget because the township trustee has a relative on the board while there is also a firefighter — the budget provides funding for the fire department — serving on the board. The two potential conflicts constitutes a majority of the advisory board, invoking the requirement for approval by the Council.

USPS says it's addressing mail delivery issues

BY BOB DEMAREE

Several days without mail delivery have been reported recently by residents in Hanover, and a US Postal Service spokesperson said efforts are being made to resolve delivery problems.

Hanover resident Michael Walro said recently that he had not received mail for three consecutive days at the end of last week, and has seen days without delivery this week — except on Monday, which was Columbus Day and typically considered a federal holiday when mail is not delivered.

"This is not right," said Walro, who is troubled by going several days without mail delivery. Several other Hanover residents also confirmed mail issues including going days without delivery.

A request for comment by the US postal service fell short of specifically addressing the problems in Hanover. However, Susan W. Wright, of US Postal Service Communications, did release a statement noting "The Postal Service has faced unprecedented challenges which includes occasional impacts with employee availability. We sincerely apologize for the issues our customers have experienced and expect delivery issues to be resolved quickly."

In her statement, Wright said "due to the flexibility of our workforce, we're able to reallocate personnel from nearby offices, when necessary, to ensure continuity of operations."

She said other steps are also being taken including policies to "fully authorize overtime to allow employees to work the time necessary to deliver mail" and "expand mail deliveries to earlier in the morning, later in the evening, and on Sundays and holidays to ensure customers receive mail at the earliest date possible," along with hiring additional personnel.

Susan W. Wright released a statement noting "The Postal Service has faced unprecedented challenges which includes occasional impacts with employee availability. We sincerely apologize for the issues our customers have experienced and expect delivery issues to be resolved quickly."

The statement noted that the postal service plans to hire approximately 100,000 employees between January 2021 and January 2022.

Now nine months into 2021, Wright was asked whether those expectations have fallen short. "We continue to hire, even after the holiday season. We focus on career-minded hires, not just temporary for the season," she noted.

Man convicted for domestic violence attack

BY COURIER STAFF

A Hanover man this week was convicted on four charges related to a 2019 incident in which he attacked his girlfriend at the time.

Richard Talbott

Richard Dale Talbott, 57, was found guilty in Jefferson Circuit Court of Criminal Confinement and Aggravated Battery, both Level 3 felonies; and Domestic battery and Strangulation, both Level 6 felonies. Talbott was also found to be a habitual felony offender and is scheduled to be sentenced Nov. 8.

The incident occurred in Oct. 28, 2019. Police were called for a domestic violence report the following day. The victim said Talbott had assaulted her, strangling her to the point that she almost passed out. Talbott then would not let her leave. She had a sore throat and marks on her face and neck.

The woman, who was dating Talbott, said he became angry when she decided to leave due to his behavior. As she tried to run out of the house, she said Talbott grabbed her around the throat, pinning her to the ground. Talbott allegedly spoke abusively to the woman, threatening to kill her, and continuing to choke her. The woman told police she believed she would die.

Talbott eventually released his grip and let her get up and use the bathroom. However, he isolated her in the bathroom, issuing additional threats and shoving her against the tub.

Talbott refused to allow the woman to leave, but eventually wanted to her drive him to the liquor store. The woman told police she knew that was her chance to escape. She waited until Talbott went inside, then drove away.

When police went to Talbott's home later, he denied all allegations, saying that he did not touch or physically harm the woman.

"This was a vicious, violent attack, and I'm relieved the jury convicted Mr. Talbott. He has a long history of violent behavior, and he terrified the woman in this attack," said Jefferson County Prosecutor David R. Sutter.

Sutter gave credit to Chief Deputy Prosecutor Melissa Campbell and Deputy Prosecutor Lynda Robison for their work in prosecuting the case. He also thanked the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office for assistance throughout the trial.

Sutter said testimony of several expert witnesses was also key. Those witnesses included Caryn Burton with Indiana Coalition Against Domestic Violence (ICADV) and Dr. William Smock. Sutter thanked Indiana State Police Detective Nate Adams, Hanover Town Marshal Shane Caldwell and former Hanover Police Department Reserve Officer Gary Rowlett for their work as well.

Talbott's criminal history includes several convictions for battery, dating back to 1986, domestic battery and being a felon in possession of ammunition.

"Mr. Talbott has clearly demonstrated that he is a dangerous and volatile man," Sutter said. "I am grateful the victim in this case no longer has to be in fear of him, and I'm glad he will be in prison where he won't be able to harm another woman."

The expansion at Anderson Elementary School took another step forward Wednesday as bids were awarded at Wednesday's meeting of the Madison Consolidated School Board.

The 10,000-square-foot addition to Anderson Elementary will include four new classrooms, a media center, conference room, two new student restrooms and two new faculty restrooms. Additionally, there will be a hybrid office area for SLP (Speech Language Pathology), special education and intervention educators in which the offices can also be used as meeting space for small groups with a lobby/waiting area in the middle. The school's current media center will be transformed into an area for science and art.

- Adopted the corporation's 2022 annual budget that totals $35,724,764 ($5,215,141 for debt service, $20,022,123 for education and $10,487,500 for operations) with a tax levy of $13,676,856 and a tax rate of 1.2521.
- Approved an agreement with Q the Agency in Louisville for video production at a cost of $40,000. Studebaker said the video "will highlight the district's opportunities and amenities. It's basically a recruiting tool to bring families and students to the Madison Consolidated Schools."
- Approved access control enhancements with keyless entry at Deputy Elementary for $14,361.07, Lydia Middleton Elementary at $18,211.56, Rykers' Ridge Elementary at $14,275.14 and Madison Junior High School at $19,029.84, along with completion of the project at MCHS for $6,496.75. "This is somewhat of a change for them to go to the keyless but this is a very safe thing for them to do," said board vice president Larry Henry.
- As Madison Consolidated Schools prepared to begin fall break, Studebaker remarked on the start of the 2021-22 school year. "We have had a phenomenal fall. The successes on the athletic field is a strong indicator of how strong the academic season is going for us. We're having a great run through the fall. A lot of things are starting to come together and you can really start to see some positive momentum building. I think our staff has done a phenomenal job of navigating all the stuff with COVID again. Congratulations for getting through the fall."

Studebaker said he wished "a fantastic fall break" to all students, teachers and staff.

With regard to COVID-19, Studebaker said cases of the virus have declined and overall conditions are good after instances at the beginning of the school year that impacted in-person instruction at Anderson Elementary and E.O. Muncie Junior/Senior High.

Couples fight turned workplace gossip

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: How much is appropriate to share in the workplace when it comes to personal matters?

In general, my husband and I get along fine. Recently, we ended up in some disagreement over not-so-important matters. Words were said that would have been better left unsaid. We were both angry. I was not proud of it. Later, I apologized.

He took our personal pickle and openly discussed it with his staff in the office. Days later, he told me how everyone at work agreed with him.

He is the boss. He says he trusts these people. I do not. The same folks bring all kinds of juicy gossip to the office from their community. That explains to me their level of trustworthiness. My experience in life is that people who gossip will be happy to share any story with all their so-called best friends. Our problem likely did not stay at work.

I am a private person. I really hate being in the local gossip mill. I would never think of taking a personal conflict and discussing it in the workplace, putting my husband — or any person who is important to me — down like that. Earlier this summer, I had asked him not to take a different family matter and discuss it with his staff, but he did.

My husband is quite a talker. He says things that come to his mind and maybe thinks about them later. I am just the opposite. Many things come to my mind but only to think about. Later, he apologized.

For the life of me, I cannot believe he threw me under the bus like that. The trust is gone, and I feel really hurt. We are working on rebuilding it with some help. I often stay in the garden, working on little things and crying. I have a difficult time forgetting and forgiving. I keep our discussions only on safe topics to avoid more trouble.

Am I overly sensitive feeling this way? Is there a right or wrong in our situation? — Feeling Hurt

Dear Feeling: It does not make you overly sensitive to feel betrayed, hurt and uncomfortable. Your husband violated your trust and exposed your private matters to his colleagues. Aside from upsetting you, this is also highly inappropriate and unprofessional as a leader.

Arrange for the two of you to speak in the presence of a couples counselor. This is not the first time your husband has turned chatty amidst a tiff at home, and it's time to break the pattern.

A third party might help you feel more comfortable articulating your thoughts to him without feeling like you're causing "more trouble." It will also give him the space to talk these things out with the right people, keeping your personal matters between the two of you and out of the office.

Tipping across the pond

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I'm here to offer the European perspective on tipping.

In Europe, there is no tipping. People are paid much better wages to begin with, so they know how much money they will earn and can budget accordingly. The price paid is higher over there so the workers don't have to rely on tips.

Did you know that tipping in the United States actually dates back to slavery? I have read that the feudal system of aristocrats helping the poor — the idea of noblesse oblige — has been described as the origin of tipping.

When restaurants were hiring newly freed slaves after the Civil War, they hired them as tipped workers so they could pay them next to nothing.

The United States needs to do away with this practice like the Europeans have. — Offering a Tip

Dear Tip: Thank you for offering a history lesson and your perspective on tipping. I am curious to hear what other readers have to say, especially those whose primary income comes from receiving tips.

Dear Annie: After 32 years of marriage, I still battle daily with what the truth is. My husband, who I have been with since I was 17 (over 36 years), had the "shining star syndrome."

Many of his co-workers found him to be their go-to guy when having relationship troubles in their lives. Only after being told by some female co-workers who were not in his fan club of his lies, disrespect and family-changing damage did I start to connect the dots.

I've had difficult times in my life, such as the diagnosis of a chronic illness, the death of a twin sibling, the death of my mother and a stressful job. It was only after he could not handle the difficult moments that affected me that I realized his behavior was narcissistic.

My biggest heartbreak was that I thought that I was not good enough, and the same for our children. I am grateful to those who finally spoke up about his friendships with other women.

I work at saving our marriage every day, and he has become accountable. It took years for him to realize the amount of damage that he caused our young adult children. I will never be completely secure, but I am not a quitter.

I am glad I can stop blaming myself for not handling everyday realities like Superwoman. Any hurt partner should know the truth. It actually saved our marriage and our family. — Grieving Loved Ones and Lies

Dear Grieving: Thank you for sharing your letter. So many people feel trapped in narcissistic relationships and need to hear that there is a way out of them and a path to freedom. It's great that you acknowledged all the people who helped you along the way. Congratulations.

Tourism board approves $410K budget for 2022

BY BOB DEMAREE

Estimating what will be received from the innkeepers tax next year, the Jefferson County Board of Tourism approved a $410,000 budget for 2022 at its meeting Monday.

The budget includes $170,000 going toward Visit Madison, Inc. operations, $110,700 for VMI marketing, $120,000 for community grants, and $9,300 as a rainy day fund. Board treasurer Curtis Chatham noted there was no increase for VMI, whose contract goes through the end of March 2022. However, he said an increase might be considered before the third quarter of next year, depending on innkeepers tax revenue.

The budget will be submitted to County Council, something new for JCBT whose revenue is generated from the innkeepers tax. However, JCBT asked the County Council to approve an ordinance last month in an effort to provide oversight in how the innkeepers tax money is spent.

So far this year, Chatham said approximately $356,000 has been raised through the innkeepers tax, which appears to be moving the county toward a record year in collections. In 2019, the county raised $443,419.18 through the innkeepers tax. In 2020 during the pandemic, collections dropped 29.9% to 310,685.14.

In other business:

• Hannah Shaffer, VMI marketing specialist, provided the monthly update from VMI, noting the 18 to 24 website demographic had increased over 50%. "We're trying to figure out how do we continue to grow this because we think that's a really exciting statistic," she said. She noted they are also working toward revamping the website. "We've got some mockups of web designs that are looking really awesome," she said.

• Chatham reported that Canaan Fall Festival has expressed an interest in expanding the event. "They are wanting to make the festival much bigger," he said, possibly adding music and rides. Chatham said the Canaan Restoration Council, organizer of the festival, has requested an application for marketing and another one for infrastructure, although he doesn't know what might be requested. "That's an important festival for everybody out that way," he said.

• Board member Wendy Lawson wondered about getting a report from the Madison Regatta following the $50,000 grant that JCBT had provided for this year's event. "I think it's important for them come back and let us know" how the event went and what can be done better, she said.

Animal shelter board to interview 4 for director

BY BOB DEMAREE

Work to hire an interim animal shelter director took another step forward Thursday as the Jefferson County Animal Shelter Advisory Board selected four candidates to interview for the position.

Six applications were received, and board member Warren Auxier initially asked that they consider interviewing all candidates.

"When I look at these, I don't see any that jump out to me," he said, noting there might be aspects each candidate has that could help the board finalize its recommendation to the County Commissioners for the animal shelter director. "Under the circumstances, let's take the extra hour and interview all six."

But board member Hannah Fagen felt differently. "I wish we had a big stack of resumes," said Fagen, but the six is what was received. She initially recommended interviewing three finalists but after further discussion the board decided to interview four.

The interviews will take place during an executive session scheduled for next Wednesday.

The board also discussed continuing efforts to improve conditions at the shelter. One problem is a large number of mice in the facility that need to be eradicated. Additionally, there's an old shed that Auxier said is "just a mess" and needs to be addressed.

There is also an overabundance of cats with 60 currently in the shelter they would like to see adopted.

SUPERATV

Basically, the resolution moves forward a process for creating two TIF (Tax Increment Financing) areas in which the City Council will vote to adopt a bond ordinance in December. The next step in the process will be to seek approval of the resolution from the Plan Commission at its Nov. 8 meeting.

"This is very exciting," said Commission chairman John Grote. "It's great the company is making the investment in Madison, and chosen Madison to continue to expand."

"Our workforce and destination development plans are very ambitious and transformative. I'm very grateful for all the collaboration between the city, our redevelopment commission and SuperATV in taking the first step in the process to bring significant investment and jobs to our community," said Courtney.

In other business, the MRC:

• Approved a subdivision plan on 12 acres of land the Redevelopment Commission owns on the west side of Shun Pike that's part of the Madison Industrial Park. "We get inquiries about smaller parcels," said Courtney, who noted the plan is to subdivide the acreage into four parcels ranging between two and four acres.

Courtney said the next step is to go before the Plan Commission to create the subdivision and to record the revised plat. Those parcels can then begin being offered for sale individually. The city would establish perimeters for what type of businesses would go there.

Board member Joe Craig agreed with the proposal to divide the property into smaller parcels. "It's easier to have it finished, it's probably easier to have it marketed that way," her said.

• Courtney reported that the city is in the process of planning how to spend $2.4 million in American Rescue Plan funds.

"A lot of it is going to be dedicated to stormwater infrastructure" since two flash flooding events have occurred in the city in the last six years, said Courtney, adding the city is also working through a rate analysis on an estimated $15 million drinking water infrastructure project.

• Courtney reported that work on a downtown parking study is being done this week with plans to have that completed by the end of November. "That will provide some really useful information for us from a policy perspective of where we need to invest and how much we should invest in parking," he said, adding there are parking constraints in downtown Madison and they are working to determine how best to manage the parking.

• Negotiations continue on bringing a grocery to downtown Madison. Courtney said about six prospects have been identified and a new marketing package is being prepared to attract potential grocery store operators. "That still is our number one downtown Madison priority. It is a key ingredient with our Destination Madison development plan" that was part of what the Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority submitted in its application for the READI (Regional Economic Acceleration Development Initiative) grant. Courtney is hopeful the city will receive funding through the READI program, which if allocated to the region "will help us to hone in on our development strategies for the next few years."

• Courtney said recruitment continues for a new Economic Development executive director. "We have the job posting out on several economic development-related platforms. We will keep you posted as those resumes come in," he said.

COUNCIL

In other business, the Council:

• Informed Faith Weir, Jefferson County Veteran Service Officer, of changes in the budget submitted for the Veterans Service Office. "We don't want you to be frightened. We want you to be excited about it," said Crozier.

Council member Judy Smith reported that Weir's salary is being increased to $40,000 due to all the extra time she's spending traveling to homes and performing additional duties. Additionally, she said the budget will provide for hiring a part-time person for 28 hours at $16.50 per hour, which amounts to $24,024 annually. Smith said everything else was left the same in the Veterans Service Office budget.

Crozier said that still needs to be approved by the state, but "we should know by the end of the year." She said there have been a number of compliments received concerning the service Weir has provided in Jefferson County and surrounding counties both in Indiana and Kentucky. "Congratulations on what a fine job you do for our veterans," said Crozier.

"I truly appreciate it," Weir said. "We've grown the office and are so busy" and to "get someone else on there as close to full-time as possible is very much appreciated."

• In preparation for completion of Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and Criminal Justice Center in 2023, Crozier asked the Commissioners whether a decision had been made on which water company will provide water for the new facility — Madison or Dupont.

Commissioner David Bramer said he has not yet heard back from Dupont Water Company, which he said has hired a consultant to determine what the appropriate water rate would be. Bramer said officials at the construction site have indicated there is currently sufficient water from Dupont to do the work needed; however, a 12-inch water line will be needed as construction nears completion.

Council member Chris Shelton said Dupont is seven months past due in quoting a water rate. "I think it's time to push the ball a little further along. I understand the agreement and their requirements but I would think in seven months, you can form a committee and get a lot of things done. I don't know why it's taking this long."

"I think they're being fair with us because they don't have a customer that uses this amount of water," Bramer said. "They don't want to charge too much but at the same time they want to find out what a correct charge would be."

• Nick Schultz, president of the Cemetery Board, requested $5,000 to do work on Craig Cemetery east of Michigan Road and Miner Cemetery east of Wilson Avenue just south of Clifty Drive. Schultz said both cemeteries have been unattended and are "full of trees" with some fallen and hitting stones, so "we're trying to cut as many as we can to avoid that problem." The Council approved $3,000, but the rest must be advertised before it can be approved, which the Council plans to do at the November meeting.

Second half goals doom Madison in loss to Heritage Hills

BY JORDAN BEAR

Madison fought until the very end but finished on the short side of a 3-1 loss to seventh-ranked Heritage Hills in the Class 2A Boys Soccer Regional semifinal at Cub Field on Thursday night.

The Patriots, who entered the game with a remarkable 17-1 record on the season, controlled the tempo for much of the first half and finally broke through in the 16th minute when Lukas Frockjaer fired a shot past keeper Drew Forner off a corner kick to give Heritage Hills a 1-0 lead.

Forner was outstanding the rest of the half making two great saves late to keep the deficit at 1-0 going into the halftime break.

"I told the boys that we were in good shape. We just need to play like we belong, and we did," Madison coach Kyle Bipes said of the halftime score. "They scored off of another set piece (early in the second half) and that's been our Achilles' heel all season. But if you had told me we would be 1-0 at the half against a top 10 team in the state. I would have said, I'll take that any day."

The second half got off to a bad start for Madison when Heritage Hills scored two goals in less than a 60-second span when Jose Lara and Austin Hill both found the back of the net in the 44th minute to give the Patriots a 3-0 lead.

Madison finally broke through in the 48th minute when Ian Eiriksson got a great pass in front of the goal and put the Cubs on the board making it 3-1.

Madison battled the Patriots the rest of the game but the Heritage Hills held strong and kept the Cubs out of the goal to grab the 3-1 win and advance to the championship game on Saturday.

"They're 18-1 now for a reason. They've played everybody and they beat just about everybody," Bipes said. "But I think these boys recognize it. That's a top 10 team in the state. We competed for 80 minutes. There were a couple lapses there in the second half where we didn't clear the ball and I'll have to go back and watch it to really see what happened but you take those away it's a completely different ballgame. I thought we played really well."

Lady Pacers fall to Providence in PK shootout

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

The always dreaded penalty kick shootout proved to be the difference as No. 9 Providence escaped with a 2-1 win over 14th-ranked Switzerland County in the semifinals of the Class A Girls Soccer Regional in Vevay on Wednesday.

The two teams played even through 94 minutes before the game headed to PKs. Switzerland County went first in the shootout and senior Raylinn Kappes hit to stake the Pacers to an early lead with her shot, but the team's next three attempts all went high, opening the door for Providence to pull out the win.

Switzerland keeper Allena Weaver stopped one Pioneer shot, but the other three all found the net and Providence celebrateding while the Pacers dejectedly walked off the field.

It was rough ending to the best season in school history, but Switzerland coach Courtney Daydharum was pleased with the effort her team put forth.

"It was a great game. I'm proud of them, they kept their composure," Daydharum said. "The nerves got to them a little bit — and for myself as well — but they came out here and performed. We just got unlucky in the shootout."

After years of trying to break through, Switzerland County finally won its first-ever girls soccer sectional title and had the honor of hosting the regional.

David Campbell

Despite coming into the game with a 12-1-2 record, the Pacers were still considered by many the underdog in a matchup against the Pioneers, who have won a state championship in recent years but were just 11-5 on the season.

Statistically, Switzerland County dominated the game. The Pacers held a 19-8 advantage in shots — including 9-3 on goal — and had eight corner kick opportunities to just two by the Pioneers.

But those stats did not translate into goals. The two teams played a scoreless first half before Providence finally

Sluggish starts have Colts, Texans looking to change course

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Colts already have seen this scenario.

Five weeks into the season, they're three games under .500 and two games back in the AFC South. Little has gone right and their postseason hopes appear to be fading fast.

Again, they're coming off a multiple-game road trip to face another struggling foe, this time, division rival Houston.

And after beating the odds in 2018 to make the playoffs, the Colts believe they can do it again.

"There are similarities for sure — just the gut-wrenching, the disappointment, the head-scratching," Frank Reich said, recalling how his first season as Indy's coach started. "We've done this before, we can certainly draw from that. Listen, everybody always talks about 1-0, but when you're 1-4 it means a little something more."

Actually, the Colts were in worse shape back then, starting 1-5 in a 16-game season and falling two games behind three division teams.

But this is an older, more tested team that understands what it takes to win in the playoffs and that Sunday's opportunity may be their best chance to turn around this season.

Indy is back on its home turf for the first time in four weeks, facing the reeling Texans — losers of four straight.

"You cannot get overly concerned about a record," quarterback Carson Wentz said. "Whether you're 4-1, 1-4, it's always just about the next week."

Houston has followed a familiar script under new coach David Culley.

Like the Colts, the Texans have dealt with an assortment of injuries.

Davis Mills replaced quarterback Tyrod Taylor in Week 2 and is expected to make his fourth consecutive start this weekend. Left tackle Laremy Tunsil will miss about a month after undergoing surgery on his left thumb. Tight end Pharaoh Brown (shoulder) and center Justin Britt (knee), both starters, sat out of Wednesday's practice and starting linebacker Kamu Grugier-Hill is dealing with a bad hip.

Houston has scored a paltry 89 points and been outscored by 52, both the fourth-worst marks in the league.

Southwestern opens sectional with sweep of Switzerland

BY LAUREN HANEY

VERSAILLES — Southwestern opened the Class 2A Volleyball Sectional Tournament at South Ripley with a three-set win over Switzerland County on Thursday, 25-21, 25-7 and 25-18.

Both teams played a sloppy first set with penalties and mistakes almost costing the Rebels that win. Southwestern came out strong in the second and third sets, however, to seize a large, early lead and close out the match.

For the Rebels, Kylie Eccles was 24-for-27 hitting with 13 kills, 10-for-11 serving with three aces, and one block, Marissa Naylor had six kills, went 16-for-18 serving with three aces, and had six digs, Meaghan Kramer was 10-for-10 serving, 72-for-72 setting with 17 assists, and Raygan Crawford was 19-for-21 hitting with six kills and went 13-for-13 serving with a pair of aces.

"Besides the beginning of the first set, our defense was pretty solid. Everybody did a good job passing. Ashleigh Ream did a nice job of stepping up for us there towards the end. On offense, our leader was senior Kylie Eccles. She had a really good game," Southwestern head coach Chris Johnson said. "We had some good blocking up front too, which is not our strong suit. Riley Scroggins did a nice job of getting up and getting some touches today. We played a really good team game today."

No stats for Switzerland County were available. The Pacers end their season with a 4-23 record.

Southwestern, now 21-10, will take on South Ripley in the semifinals today on the Raiders' home floor. The match is set for a 12:30 p.m. start with the championship slated for 7 p.m.

TRIMBLE SWEEPS PAST CARROLL

Trimble County's volleyball team posted a three-set victory over Carroll County in a district preview at home on Wednesday.

The Raiders won by scores of 25-9, 25-8, 25-9.

Bailyn Clifford had 14 kills and four aces while Aubree Craig had 12 kills for Trimble. Danielle Craig had 29 assists, Maggie Ginn had 12 digs and Aleah Cull had four aces.

On Tuesday, Trimble suffered a 25-12, 25-7 loss at Williamstown. Aubree Craig had six kills and two blocks, Danielle Craig had 16 assists, and Ginn had five aces.

On Thursday, Carroll County lost 25-13, 25-12 at home to Dayton while Trimble's game at Eminence was canceled.

Trimble County finishes the regular season with a 10-14 record while Carroll wraps up the season at 2-25. The two teams will square off in the opening round of the 31st District Tournament at Owen County on Monday.

HANOVER FALLS TO MOUNT

Hanover's volleyball team suffered its first loss in conference play in a four-set setback at home to Mount St. Joseph on Wednesday.

The Panthers lost by scores of 25-19, 16-25, 25-20 and 25-21.

Adrianne Vance had 13 kills for the Panthers while Casey Dunn had 31 digs, Kelsey Ketcham had 29 assists and Maura Dankoski had four blocks.

Hanover, now 11-8 overall and 3-1 in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference, travels to Bluffton on Saturday and heads to Transylvania next Wednesday.

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover's undefeated women's soccer team rolled on, hammering rival Franklin 7-0 at home on Wednesday.

Autumn Boothby scored two goals to lead the Panthers, who held a 28-2 overall advantage in shots including 13-1 on goal. Bryn Rolfsen, Beth Cook, Kelsey Haas and Marigrace Anderson each had goals for Hanover, which also picked up an own goal courtesy of the Grizzlies. Nora Ludwig had two assists while Ainsleigh Spaulding, Jostin Reeves and Cook each had assists.

Maggie Hinegardner stopped one shot in goal.

Hanover, now 10-0-2 overall and 5-0 in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference, travels to Defiance today and heads to Rose-Hulman next Wednesday.

No. 3 Providence pulls away for 3-1 win over Southwestern

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Southwestern knew what it was up against when it took the pitch on Thursday against the defending state champion, but that didn't stop the Rebels from battling to the final whistle and giving their all against one of the best teams in the state.

Third-ranked and defending state champion Providence walked away with a 3-0 win in the Class A Regional semifinals at Madison Junior High School, but the Pioneers had to work for everything they could get to finally dispatch the pesky Rebels.

Southwestern coach Seth Shields knew that Providence was an elite program and that coming away with a win would be a long shot, but he was thrilled with the way his team performed.

"We know they win sectionals every year, they win regionals pretty much every year, and they're the defending state champions. So we knew we had a tough matchup," Shields said. "But in the first half, we came out strong. We needed the first five minutes to get rid of the butterflies and the next 10 was to see how we match up with this team and we did. We did perfect. I couldn't ask for more."

Providence (13-3-3) controlled large swaths of the first half and other than a goal in the 28th minute by William Hoke III, the Pioneers were held largely in check.

But keeping the Pioneers are bay proved easier said than done. After going into intermission down only 1-0, Southwestern surrendered two quick goals that all but ended any hopes of staging an upset.

Providence's first goal of the second half was a thing of beauty when Hoke and Lazlo Langness played a game of give-and-go on a corner kick that resulted in Hoke's left-footed shot skimming into the net.

Langness then found the net in the 53rd minute to push the game out of reach.

All the while, Southwestern found opportunities to score few and far between. The Rebels finished the match with just seven shot attempts — and only four on goal — while Providence had 22 attempts and 11 on frame.

"In the first half, we played them great. I think they were on their back heels their defense against us. Then, in the second half, it just kind shifted," Shields said. "They had a couple chances off a couple corner kicks but again, I couldn't be more proud of this team."

David Campbell

Southwestern goalie William Stockdale (5) goes up for the ball as Providence's Quentin Hesse (9) closes in during the regional semifinals Thursday at Madison.

Southwestern goalie William Stockdale finished the game with eight saves while Providence keeper Charles Scott had four stops.

Providence advances to the regional finals today where it will host eighth-ranked Forest Park at home.

Southwestern ends the season with a 9-9 record and a season to be proud about.

"The seniors are like my children so it's hard to not win this, but they played great. I told them they now forever have a banner inside the gym and Southwestern only has four," Shields said. "Some of these other elite players that come through Southwestern all have a banner and now they have something to be proud of and look up on. They should be proud."

Hanover men's soccer beats Franklin, 3-1

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover men's soccer ripped off its fifth straight win 3-1 at Franklin on Wednesday.

Josh Hughes scored two goals for the Panthers while Luke Eppler scored once. The Panthers outshot Franklin 18-4 overall — including 13-2 on goal — and goalie Luciano Salemi had one save.

Hanover, now 9-3-1 overall and 5-0 in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference, heads to Defiance on Saturday and hosts Rose-Hulman on Wednesday.

Hanover women's tennis advances in HCAC tourney

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover women's tennis opened the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference Tournament on Wednesday afternoon with a win over Manchester in the opening round.

Play was halted due to weather but as the higher seed, Hanover advanced to the next round at the commissioner's discretion.

Hanover claimed an early 1-0 lead after Rachel Pinnick and Lyla Waskom won at No. 3 doubles. Before play was halted, Maddie Shannon and Linde Meerpoel held a convincing 7-1 advantage at No. 1 doubles while Isabelle Roberts and Melaina Tippery held the 7-0 lead at No. 2 doubles.

In singles action, Cassie Froedge had made strong progress at No. 5 singles, leading the match 6-0, 1-0.

With the win, Hanover advances to the next round of the HCAC Tournament and will take on Anderson on Saturday in Lexington, Kentucky.

broke the deadlock in the 51st minute when Alli Wade scored on a long shot for a 1-0 lead.

Switzerland didn't waste much time getting the equalizer and tied the game 1-1 on a Mackenzie Taylor goal in the 58th minute, her fifth goal in three postseason games.

Neither team scored over the final 22 minutes of regulation or the two overtime sessions, however Taylor had a goal in the first OT nullified on an offsides call.

While Providence advances to the regional final where it will host third-ranked Forest Park, Switzerland heads into the offseason with a bright future ahead. The Pacers graduate three seniors — Kappes, Kayley Jones and defender Alisha Detmer — while returning eight starters, of which none will be seniors next year.

Throw in a talented junior high squad that is moving up, and Daydharum knows that her team will be a force moving forward.

"This was a very special group, all 20 of them. We're gonna miss our three seniors," Dayadharum said. "The sophomore class is just unbelievable and we had some freshmen playing big minutes for us. They're gonna do big things. They're definitely not done yet."

COLTS

Yet the Texans, like the Colts, realize what a win this week would do for the locker room.

"The guys still here from last year, we know what it looks like when the locker room starts to fall apart," safety Justin Reid said. "Right now, at this point, this year and where it was last year, it's completely different. The locker room has definitely held together much more closely this year, and we've just got to keep plugging away."

MOORE PRODUCTION

The injuries gave receiver Chris Moore an opportunity to showcase his skills last week and Houston is hoping for an encore performance this week.

After promoting Moore from the practice squad last weekend, the six-year veteran caught his first pass since 2019 and finished with five receptions for a career-best 109 yards. He even scored on a 67-yard TD reception.

"This guy comes to work every single day," said Brandin Cooks, the Texans' top receiver. "He works his tail off, he gets called up and his opportunity came, and he took advantage of it."

HILTON WATCH

The Colts activated four-time Pro Bowl receiver T.Y. Hilton from injured reserve Thursday and he could play Sunday — about seven weeks after he had neck surgery.

The 31-year-old Hilton said he initially considered retiring following the procedure and even spoke with Andrew Luck before the pain subsided and he put his post-NFL career plans on hold.

If Hilton does play, his presence could give Indy's offense a huge boost. In 19 games against Houston, Hilton has 102 receptions, 1,803 yards, 11 TDs and eight 100-yard games including his only one last season.

"Everybody knows when 13 is out there, we're a different team," Hilton said with a smile.

NOT SO SPECIAL

Ka'imi Fairbairn missed two extra points and a field goal, but the worst mistake came when Cameron Johnston's punt bounced off the back of teammate Terrence Brooks for zero yards and gave the Patriots great field position.

The Texans expect better results in Fairbairn's third game back since suffering a leg injury.

Bengals, Lions aim to bounce back after losing on late kicks

BY LARRY LAGE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — The Detroit Lions and Cincinnati Bengals have been on the wrong side of NFL history so far this season.

The Lions became the first team to lose two games in the same season on game-winning kicks of 50-plus yards with no time left, and they did it in a three-week span.

The Bengals (3-2) were part of the first game marred by three potential winning field goals that were missed in the fourth quarter or overtime.

On Sunday at Ford Field, both teams get a chance to bounce back from a deflating defeat.

Detroit (0-5) may not be favored to win any of its remaining games, leaving open the possibility that the franchise has the first 0-17 season, 13 years after enduring the NFL's first 0-16 season.

After watching the Lions on film, Bengals receiver Tee Higgins insisted he sees a really good team.

"This is not going to be a cakewalk," Higgins said. "The record says 0-5. They obviously lost by game-winning field goals and things like that."

Detroit dropped its latest game when Minnesota's Greg Joseph made a 54-yard field goal with no time remaining. In Week 3, Baltimore's Justin Tucker connected on a league-record, 66-yard field goal as time expired.

Even though coach Dan Campbell is in his first year leading the franchise, he knows a lot of its fans have been suffering through a lot setbacks for several decades.

"Nothing I'm going to tell them is going to make them feel any better," Campbell said. "All I can do is try to prove it."

Cincinnati's rookie kicker, Evan McPherson, is eager to prove he can do the job after missing field goals late in regulation and in overtime against the Packers.

BANGED UP BURROW

Bengals quarterback Joe Burrow is expected to play after having a precautionary trip to the hospital after last week's loss to the Packers. The second-year quarterback got hit in the throat at some point and it affected his ability to talk. Burrow, who is playing on a surgically repaired left knee, has been sacked an average of three times per game in his career.

The biggest hit Burrow took against Green Bay appeared to be when he ran on a third-and-long and was tackled by two defenders. Cincinnati coach Zac Taylor told Burrow he should not have put himself in that position.

"He wants to help the team get first downs," Taylor said. "But at the same time that's part of protecting our football team as we need him out there playing and not exposing himself to some unnecessary hits."

GOING SHORT

Lions quarterback Jared Goff is averaging just 6.6 yards passing per attempt, his lowest since he was a rookie with the Los Angeles Rams in 2016, to rank No. 25 in the NFL.

Goff's shaky accuracy, getting sacked nearly three times a game and a lackluster group of wide receivers have contributed to the problem.

"I'm trying to find the guy who's open every play," Goff bristled. "If that happens all the way down the field, that's the guy. If it's not, then it's not."

MORE MIXON

Bengals running back Joe Mixon had just 10 carries for 33 yards last week as continued to recover from an ankle sprain, and is expected to be busier at Detroit.

"He has good energy and seems to be moving around pretty good," Taylor said.

Mixon missed most of last season with a foot injury.

CAREER YEAR

Lions linebacker Charles Harris is playing as Miami hoped he would have after drafting him with the No. 22 pick overall in 2017.

Harris already has a career-high four sacks, surpassing the total he had over three seasons with the Dolphins. His four-game sack streak is tied for the longest in team history.

Harris, Chicago's Khalil Mack and Carolina's Haason Reddick are the three NFC linebackers with a sack in four games this season.

COACHING CONNECTIONS

Campbell was just getting into coaching a little more than a decade ago, when he met Taylor, who was a graduate assistant for then-Texas A&M coach Mike Sherman.

"I quickly learned like, 'OK, this kid's pretty sharp,' " recalled the 45-year-old Campbell, who is seven years older than Taylor.

When Campbell was an interim coach in Miami in 2015, Taylor was his offensive coordinator and the defensive coordinator was Lou Anarumo, who currently leads Cincinnati's defense.

MADISON

For Madison, the season comes to a close but after a very successful campaign where they won their second sectional championship in three years and finished with a 0-9-2 record. Bipes does have to say goodbye to some seniors as six players graduate but he returns a strong core for next year when a strong junior high group joins the high school team so the future is bright.

"Nobody expected us to even be in the situation that we're in. If you would have told me before the season that we're going to win sectionals, I probably would have laughed at you," Bipes said. "It was an absolute roller coaster of a season, up and down all year long. But we started playing well at the right time. It's awesome to see the seniors get to go out with a sectional championship. They were my first class as freshmen so this has meant something special to me, especially to get them a sectional. I don't like shedding tears after losses because it makes me feel like I'm soft but, man, losing those seniors is gonna be tough. I did shed a couple of tears. We're gonna miss them."

Heritage Hills will play for the regional championship on Saturday at Washington when it meets No. 8 Gibson Southern.

Why should I plan if I don't ever want to retire?

Layin' It on the Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

"Many people, especially small business owners and entrepreneurs, say they never want to retire. That's fine, but that doesn't mean you shouldn't plan for the future."
Steve Dybwad

Over 70% of Americans say they anticipate working even after they've retired. For this group of creative, energetic, and motivated individuals, the thought of tootling across North America in a motorhome or taking adult education classes is less than appealing. Their visions of the future often include starting a different business or trying out an entirely new line of work. A business owner is often emotionally connected to the company they've built and may have difficulty thinking of life without their "baby."

Emotional attachment is why many business owners and entrepreneurs who enjoy their work become complacent about retirement planning, choosing not to save much for the future. However, even if you're convinced you never want to retire, you are still wise to make saving for retirement a critical component of your life's trajectory. Not only will having a retirement plan help you define your goals and expectations, but it will also open more choices, which in turn enhance the quality of your life.

A well-designed retirement and income plan may allow you to scale back your hours at work or devote more time and money to your favorite charity or cause. Planning well could mean you will have enough cash to pivot as your needs and desires change. If you employ others, giving them a retirement plan can increase retention and mean tax breaks for you as an employer.

Correctly structured and implemented retirement accounts can significantly lower your taxable income. Even if you think you never want to stop working, you could develop a "Tax-Savings Plan" to help you avoid paying more in taxes than necessary.

A good retirement blueprint is a lens to see your financial life moving forward efficiently. Working with a retirement and income specialist to create this roadmap has other advantages as well. A customized plan will let you see where your money is going, what expenses can be reduced or eliminated, and where there might be unanticipated future expenses. Future-focused financial planning can also help you deal with issues that can devastate your wealth, such as outliving your money, "sequencing" risk, and inevitable market downturns. It can also assist you if you cannot continue your present career due to unanticipated medical or economic issues.

"I'll just sell my business when I am ready to quit."

Many entrepreneurs and small business owners believe that they don't need to save money because they will sell their businesses and retire on the proceeds. However, a little research uncovers the truth about the glut of companies on the market and the percentage selling is low. Business brokers report that fewer than 25% of small businesses listed eventually sell. Even those that do may have valuations significantly less than their owners expected.

Bottom line: Even if you don't see traditional retirement in your future, planning still makes a lot of sense. Strategic planning helps you create a safety net that could protect you against economic upheaval and tax hikes. Planning will also provide a snapshot of your financial health and give you options and flexibility if you decide to leave the workplace.

Sic 'em! Georgia climbs to No. 1 with defense for the ages

BY PAUL NEWBERRY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATHENS, Ga. — Georgia is back at No. 1 for the first time in more than a decade, led by a defense that looks like one for the ages.

The Bulldogs (6-0, 4-0 Southeastern Conference) have allowed a miniscule 5.5 points a game through the first half of the regular season — and that includes a pick-six when the defense wasn't even on the field.

No wonder Kentucky, off to its best start since 1950 and ranked No. 11, is a more than three-touchdown underdog heading into Saturday's showdown, according to FanDuel Sportsbook. It's a matchup that very well could determine the winner of the SEC East.

"They are playing at a ridiculous level defensively," Wildcats coach Mark Stoops said.

With future NFL draft picks all over the field, Georgia's defense has surrendered two touchdowns and 26 points.

Ridiculous, indeed.

They have a chance to be remembered as one of the truly elite units of the modern era. Over the last 20 years, only three teams have allowed less that 10 points a game, most recently Alabama in 2011 (7.7).

In today's high-scoring game, with spread offenses and run-pass options, it's truly a throwback to see a team play defense like the Bulldogs.

They have allowed the fewest yards overall (201.2 per game), the fewest passing yards (137.0), the fourth-fewest rushing yards (64.2). They lead the SEC with 22 sacks and have hurried opposing quarterbacks 109 times — an astonishing average of 18.2 each time out.

The Bulldogs have so many defensive weapons that no one really stands out.

"There's not really anyone out there that's saying, 'Look at me, look at me, I need more attention,' " coach Kirby Smart said. "They want to win, is what they want to do, and that's what matters."

After Alabama's upset loss at Texas A&M last weekend, Georgia was a unanimous choice for No. 1 in The Association Press poll — the first time the Bulldogs have been in that spot since the preseason of 2008.

One must go all the way back to 1982 to find the last time Georgia was ranked No. 1 during the season.

None of that really matters, of course. The only ranking that counts is the one at the end.

"Don't try and change it up, don't try and be someone you're not," linebacker Adam Anderson said. "Don't let being No. 1 influence how you play them."

Georgia's only close call was a 10-3 victory over Clemson in the season opener. Since then, the Bulldogs have routed their opponents by an average margin of 39.8 points.

Just two weeks ago, Georgia met another surprising team that was undefeated and ranked in the top 10.

The Bulldogs blew way then-No. 8 Arkansas 37-0.

Kentucky (6-0, 4-0) hopes to avoid a similar fate and show it's more than a basketball school.

"I know every time we break it down, we always talk about Atlanta," safety Yusuf Corker said, referring to the site of the SEC championship game. "This time, we've got a chance to really go do it."
